STATEMENT ON RUSSIA STIRS CAPITAL TODAY

U. S. Ambassador Criticized and Commended for Testimony on Lend-Lease.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 9—Ambassador W. H. Standley's statement in Moscow that the Russians were kept ignorant of the war was disputed today in testimony at the house foreign affairs committee and at the state department it was said Russia was kept without consultation.

The statement, which could cause a grave diplomatic rift, was the play away from consideration of other

Ambassador Standley's statement, Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the foreign affairs committee said, "according to the evidence we have it is not so." Lend-lease officials said, "received wide publicity in the Soviet Press."

Undersecretary of State Welles, asked Standley had not consulted with the government in Washington, commented that understanding and trust exist between the United Nations. Welles said he was sure the ambassador's remarks could not have been intended to and did not cast any doubt on that trust and understanding.

Defends Standley

Representative Eaton (R-NJ), a member of the house foreign affairs committee, said Standley "performed a public service" in making his statement.

Terming Standley's assertion a revelation of "an unfortunate and serious situation," Eaton added that the matter should receive the very serious attention of our state department."

His comment to reporters came as the house prepared to resume debate on extension of the lend-lease act, under which quantities of war supplies have been furnished Russia along with other United Nations.

Neither the White House nor the state department would comment on Standley's statement, which focused closer attention on Russia in the light of Vice President Wallace's Delaware, Ohio radio address yesterday in which he warned that a third world war appears inevitable unless a satisfactory understanding is reached between the western democracies and the Soviet Union.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) told newsmen he would have something to say about the Russian situation on the senate floor.

Senator George (D-Ga) of the senate foreign relations committee said he didn't understand why Standley is "talking this way unless he has consumption here at

RAF BOMBERS HIT NUERNBERG

Heavy Force Raids Factory City and Other Targets in Western Germany.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 9—A strong force of RAF bombers attacked Nuernberg and targets in western Germany last night, the air ministry announced today.

"Last night aircraft of the bomber command were out in strength over southern Germany with Nuernberg as the main objective," the communique said.

Nuernberg was last hit by allied planes in a heavy raid on the night of Feb. 25.

Seven bombers failed to return from last night's said.

One German plane which attempted to intercept the British bombers was shot down, the announcement said.

Lancasters on Raid

Some four-motored Lancasters participated in the attack, and at least two squadrons of Canadians took part.

A Berlin broadcast recorded by The Associated Press said large fires were started, and that eight of the raiders were shot down.

Nuernberg is one of the chief German centers for production of the diesel engines which power submarines and factories there also produce armored vehicles, aircraft engines, electric motors, searchlights and firing devices for mines. There is also a Messerschmitt factory at Furth in the Nuernberg area.

In the Feb. 25 raid, the last heavy blast at the city since last August, a large force of bombers cascaded tons of explosives.

The number of planes which the Nazis claimed to have destroyed indicated in itself the raid was carried out in force.

Willkie said that the Russians

Unharvested Crops Valued at $50,000 in Marion County

Farm Committee Seeks Way To Salvage Corn and Soy Beans; Most of Beans Believed Lost.

By W. T. BUCHANAN

Corn and soybeans conservatively estimated to be worth $50,000 still are unharvested in the fields of Marion county farms, it was reported last night at a meeting of the farm Mobilization Day committee in the American Legion Dugout.

The meeting was called as the first step in mapping plans for salvaging as much as possible of the unharvested grain.

The group of approximately 60 farmers also heard an address by Christ Kainrad, Portage county dairy farmer, now serving in Columbus as a member of the state AAA committee.

Acreage Reported

Reports on the amount of corn and soy beans still in the fields were heard from township AAA chairmen. Reported were 1,727 acres of corn and 1,029 acres of soy beans. Unfavorable weather in the fall and lack of sufficient machinery and storage space, it was said, were the reasons for the unusually high acreage of unharvested crops.

Farm leaders declared last night that the situation prevalent in Marion county is general throughout a large part of the country. It is considered so serious that the salvage program was inaugurated at the request of Secretary of Agriculture Claude A. Wickard.

After reports on the amount of grain still unharvested, the group, made up of township committeemen and interested farmers, discussed means of obtaining the necessary labor to garner the crops from the fields.

Arthur H. Smith, county farm agent, reported that a committee had been set up to operate through the county extension office to help provide labor for the harvesting. One of the first tasks of the committee, Mr. Smith said, will be to determine the number of farmers who need help and the amount of help required.

He mentioned the posibility of using rural high school boys but declared there still were details regarding absence from school to be worked out with school officials.

While farm leaders expressed the opinion much of the corn could be salvaged, it was the general concensus that the soy beans now were not worth the cost of harvesting. The beans lost were estimated at between 20,000 and 25,000 bushels, worth approximately $35,000 at present prices.

Introduces Speaker

Frank G. Montgomery, chairman of the Marion county farm war board, presided at the meeting and introduced Mr. Kainrad.

Pointing to the importance of meeting the nation's food goal this summer Mr. Kainrad declared American food had saved Britain from defeat and helped Russia turn the German army back at Stalingrad. Without this help, he said, the British would have been forced to surrender and Russia likely would have been beaten.

He discussed the problems facing agriculture in war time and declared it was a mistake for farmers to believe that high prices for their crops would solve all the farm problems. He warned that higher prices would set off a spiral of inflation that would pile a greater debt on the nation —a debt, he said, that eventually must be paid off by agriculture.

Recalling that farm prices were high in the last war, Mr. Kainrad reminded the group that agriculture was bankrupt in 1930.

What farmers should be more

OFFICIALS PLAN DIMOUT SIGNALS

Countywide Demonstration Is Set for Thursday Night.

Civilian defense officials today were preparing instructions as to signals which will prevail in Marion city for the first countywide dimout Thursday night.

In outlying communities, each CD council will operate its own signal system after the first alert is telephoned by the Marion police department.

Because the city has not yet been able to get necessary equipment to install seven new electric sirens which the CD has purchased, it will be necessary to work out some system utilizing telephones and factory whistles, William R. Martin, city coordinator, said.

During the dimout all lights in the residential and business sections of the county must be extinguished according to statewide rules governing dimouts and blackouts.

Street and traffic lights will be permitted to operate and traffic also will be permitted to move, providing headlights are dimmed.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT IN R. E. PARISH'S CONDITION

Word Received from Injured Flier's Parents.

The condition of Richard E. Parish of 366 North Prospect street, Army transport pilot who was critically injured in a plane crash at Burlington, Vt., Saturday morning, is "slightly improved," according to a telegram received from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Parish, by his brother, John A. Parish of 369 North Prospect street, this morning.

The telegram stated that their son had been examined by a nerve specialist and that his "reflexes were good." He is to be examined by a bone specialist Saturday.

The Marion pilot has been at Burlington since last October where he has been taking advanced training as a transport pilot.

Mr. and Mrs. Parish left for Burlington Sunday night. They were joined there by their daughter, Miss Pauline Parish who recently joined the WAVES and is on the staff at Smith college, Northampton, Mass. Miss Parish, who recently suffered a broken ankle in a fall on the icy pavement, still was under hospital supervision at the time of her brother's accident.

REDS CAPTURE SYCHEVKA ON CENTRAL FRONT

Troops Continue Advance To Reach Dnieper River West of Moscow.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 9—The Red Army, driving west of recaptured Sychevka, the central front west of Moscow, has reached the Dnieper river northwest of the important German base at Vyazma, it was disclosed today.

A dispatch to the Communist party newspaper Pravda from this sector pointed out that Russian troops pressing hard on the heels of the Germans gave them no respite and drove to the waterway which extends from the central front down through the Ukraine past Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk to the Black sea.

The Russians were already east and northeast of Vyazma after advancing through Gzhaisk.

Take Town, Move On

The capture of Sychevka, 35 miles north of Vyazma on the railway to Rzhev, was announced in a special communique last night, and the offensive then lashed west and southwest from Sychevka, it was indicated.

Hitting hard along the railroad between Gzhatsk and Vyazma, the Soviet forces battered their way into the railway station of Sergo-Ivanovskaya, 24 miles northeast of Vyazma, while advance mobile units of the Red Army in the sector west of Gzhatsk thundered into 20 villages along the old Smolensk road.

All of these drives fast were building a Russian arc about Vyazma, last of the German bastions to stand in the old Rzhev-Vyazma-Velikie Luki triangle.

South of this front, the Russians said they took more settlements west and south of Lgov. In the latter area the Germans were reported throwing in troops in a series of furious counter-attacks, using forces they have been able apparently to shift from other fronts.

Nazi Claim Unconfirmed

Although the Germans seem to have been able to attain numerical superiority in some sectors, no dispatches from the front have confirmed the German assertions that some of their units have stormed to within 12 miles west of Kharkov.

The Russians, however, still were on the defensive southwest of Voroshilovgrad as the Germans mounted heavy attacks supported by tanks and planes, although dispatches said that the Germans had been beaten back.

Red Star reported that Soviet troops now were menacing the highway southwest of Sychevka which runs to the town of Nikitinka, a third of the way between Sychevka and Smolensk, which lie 115 miles apart.

Wallace Focuses Attention on Part Russia Plays in Post-War Problems

By WADE WERNER
Former Chief of the Moscow Bureau of the AP

WASHINGTON, March 9—One of the knottier problems confronting United Nations peacemakers was brought into sharp focus today by Vice President Wallace's warning that a third world war appears inevitable unless a "satisfactory understanding" is reached between the western democracies and Soviet Russia.

The subject has been a matter of concern in official and diplomatic quarters here for some time, but until Mr. Wallace brought it into the open in his radio address delivered yesterday at Ohio Wesleyan university in Delaware the tendency was to avoid calling public attention to it.

Lack of a satisfactory understanding nevertheless was becoming apparent through the controversy between the Polish government-in- exile and Moscow over Poland's eastern border, and in pointed Soviet reminders that not only Bessarabia but Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania are considered integral parts of the Soviet Union.

In his address at Delaware, O., the vice president said a third world war was likely "if case we double-cross Russia." Now Premier Josef Stalin and his associates do not hide their conviction that Russia was double-crossed in the first World war, in which she lost Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Bessarabia, part of White Russia and part of the Ukraine.

In 1939 she recovered her White Russian and Ukrainian areas from Poland, in 1940 took Bessarabia back from Rumania and incorporated Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia into the Soviet Union, while part of Finland came back into the Union through incorporation into the Finno-Karelian Soviet Socialist Republic.

Any "satisfactory understanding" with Russia, therefore, some students of eastern European problems point out, must take into account the Soviet viewpoint that what Russia regained in 1939-40 was territory she lost unjustly as a "victor" in the first world war.

The United States government already has announced its intention to press for United Nations conferences on postwar problems now, without waiting for the end of the war, on the theory that the longer knotty problems are postponed the knottier they are likely to become.

Japs' Difficulties Mount in Supplying Pacific Bases

Warnings Come from Australia, However, Against Discounting Enemy's Strength in War one.

By The Associated Press

Secretary of the Navy Knox declared today that Japan was experiencing ever greater difficulty in supplying her far-flung network of island bases in the southwest Pacific and said "our submarine campaign continues to be very successful."

Knox told newsmen in Washington that Japanese shipping losses raised "a most serious factor" in Japan's military future.

"We're growing stronger than we have ever been in the Solomons area," he added, and commented that the Pacific situation generally was in a state of suspended animation.

Meanwhile, twin official warnings were sounded against any tendency to discount Japan's air strength in the wake of the big allied victory over Japanese seaborne reinforcements enroute from New Britain to New Guinea last week.

"The Jap air forces are increasing in strength here, notwithstanding his past losses and defeats," said a spokesman at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia.

"Any disparaging account of his (the enemy's) air potential is not only incorrect but dangerous."

At the same time, Australia's Prime Minister John Curtin stressed the need for more bombing planes and declared that last week's destruction of a 22-ship Japanese convoy in the Bismarck sea did not mean that the allies had established overwhelming aerial superiority in the zone north of Australia.

Japs Attack in Force

The warnings were pointed by an attack by nine Japanese bombers and 13 Zero fighters in the Buna sector in New Guinea yesterday, when the raiders swept over allied position and sunk a small cargo vessel.

Allied interceptor planes shot down a bomber and a fighter, it was announced.

Other United Nations fliers attacked Japanese bases in Dutch New Guinea, in the Taniumbari islands, on Timor island and at

BROOKS ATTACKS CLAMP ON PRESS

Sees Effort by Some To Discredit Papers.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 9—Describing a strong free press as a vigorous spokesman of the people, Senator Brooks (R-Ill) asked congress today to serve notice upon the administration it "will not tolerate" restrictions reducing newspaper potency.

"The newspapers of America stand in the shadow of no other group's patriotism," Brooks told the senate. "They have been marked for their loyalty and for their energy and devotion to the cause we all serve. But there is a persistent effort to brand them as pariahs, to smear and assail them, to separate them from their government and the people they serve."

Brooks asserted the press accepted a WPB order in January limiting their consumption of newsprint by 10 per cent, but that efforts to add another 10 per cent curtailment were dropped when justification could not be shown.

"The rescinding of this second order only ten days after it was announced is evidence of further hostility to the press and the desire by some people holding responsible positions in the government to unnecessarily interfere

QUAKE ROCKS NORTHERN OHIO

Cleveland Reports Shaking; Shock Felt by Some in Marion.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 9 — The first earth tremor experienced here in six years bounced thousands of Clevelanders in their beds last night but caused no damage or injuries.

The shock was felt through much of northern Ohio and as far south as Zanesville and Dayton.

Rev. J. S. Jollat, S.J., seismologist at John Carroll university said the quake was recorded on his seismograph just before 11:20 (EWT) last night and last for about two and a half seconds. He thought it originated within 20 or 30 miles southwest of Cleveland.

The last recorded quake in this region in 1937 originated much further away, Father Jollat reported. He declared the tremor originated because a strain in the earth's crust broke, probably about 20 miles under the surface.

Called "Unusually Strong"

Dr. J. J. Nassau, director of Case School of Applied Science observatory, said the tremor was "unusually strong for this area." He explained that northern Ohio is comparatively free from earth shocks and described the occurrence as "perhaps the strongest in this region in the last 20 years."

The last earth shock felt here came almost six years ago to the hour before the one that jolted the city last night. It occurred at 12:44 a. m., on March 9, 1937, and was clearly noticeable by residents of the east and west sides and most of the suburbs.

The tremors shook sections of the east, middle west and Ontario, Canada.

Many Inquiries

Police in several cities from Detroit on the west to Pittsburgh on the east reported "floods" of telephone calls from anxious residents asking information after their homes had been jarred in shocks lasting as long as 40 seconds.

Shock Reported Felt in Marion

Only Marionite reported to have felt the earth tremors which The Associated Press reported shook Cleveland and northern Ohio at 11:26 last night was Patrolman Harry L. Smith of 572 Courtland avenue—and he didn't mention it until he learned there actually had been a mild quake.

When he heard of the tremors this morning he said they awakened him from his sleep last night. He had been in bed about 20 minutes.

For about 15 seconds the house shook. Worried that something had happened to the furnace, he ran to the basement. It was operating perfectly and he finally decided it had been heavy trucks passing on Delaware avenue.

Absenteeism To Be Topic of Meeting

Causes of absenteeism and remedies for the situation will be discussed at a meeting which the Marion area war manpower commission board has called for next Monday night at 7:30 in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Fred C. Scherff, manager of the Marion United States Employment Service office, said the meeting was decided on at a board session last night.

The board will invite heads of various groups and organizations to the meeting.

No appeal cases were heard last night.

MARETH LINE THRUST COSTS NAZIS HEAVILY

Germans Also Forced To Withdraw After Attack in North Tunisia.

By The Associated Press

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was declared officially to have lost 50 tanks and fallen back into the hills along the Mareth line in southern Tunisia today after six violent but unsuccessful thrusts against the British 8th Army, and axis setbacks were reported in two other sectors of the Tunisian battle theater.

In the north, an allied communique said, the Germans were forced to withdraw after launching an attack near Tamera, seven miles west of Sedjenane, the communique said. About 200 prisoners were captured before the enemy called off his attack.

About 100 miles northwest of the Mareth line, French forces occupied Tozeur, 50 miles southwest of Gafsa, before the Chott Djerid.

Allied patrols were reported operating on the outskirts of Gafsa itself, however.

Sicily Bombed Again

(The Italian communique announced today that Palermo, Sicily, had been bombed again, and claimed that five allied planes were shot down by fighters warding off an attack on a convoy. The damage at Palermo was declared not to have been serious. Only local activity was reported on the land front. The war bulletin was broadcast by the same radio and recorded by The Associated Press.)

Rommel, smashed back in his experiment in attacking his nemesis, the British Eighth army, was said to have pulled into high ground about Hallour and to be continuing his retreat.

There was no indication that Montgomery was undertaking a pursuit, however, and the communique said that only patrol activity was engaged in yesterday by the Eighth army.

In the air fighter-bombers and fighters of the western desert force poured bombs and gunfire on Rommel's retreating armor and transport and inflicted "considerable damage," the communique said. Other allied fliers carried out similar attacks in the Sedjenane area where buildings occupied by troops were blown up.

While on a sea sweep bombers and fighters encountered a large formation of axis planes and shot down 17 of them, the communique said.

Two allied aircraft are missing from yesterday's operations, it was announced.

Fortresses in Battle

Flying Fortresses escorted by lightnings engaged a combined force of 30 Messerschmitt 109's, Focke-Wulf 190's and Junkers 88's in a 30-minute battle over the Sicilian straits and the Fortresses accounted for 10 of the German fighters while the Lightnings got seven, military spokesman said.

In addition, the Fortresses observed two more axis planes collided in the air.

All told, the allies announced they accounted for 24 axis aircraft yesterday, losing but two themselves.

The heavy concentration of axis aircraft over the strait was taken by observers as an indication that allied sea sweeps are making themselves felt on the enemy supply line.

Rommel's loss in new tanks was particularly heavy and much greater than first believed. The 19 Mark II special in British hands weigh about 20 tons and have a two-inch gun. The 13 Mark IV specials weigh 22 tons and have a 75-millimeter gun.

MUSIC GROUP MAKING "VICTORY SING" PLANS

Choose Numbers for Program Set for March 19.

Selections to be sung at the "victory sing" Friday night, March 19 at 8:30, fast time, in the Central Junior High school auditorium are being chosen by a committee of members of the sponsoring organization, the new Marion City and County Music Educators' association.

On the committee are L. G. Jones, chairman, Miss Estella Timberlake, Miss DeMeril Hafer and Milton Baker.

The Marion county war bond staff will cooperate with the association in its first big public venture and will supply the speaker, Frank M. Pauly of Cleveland, representative of the state staff of the Ohio War Bond committee.

Mr. Pauly will speak briefly and the Harding High school band will play.

Most of the time will be given to singing patriotic songs, under the direction of Mr. Jones and Mr. Baker.

Homer E. Huffman, president of the association, emphasized in announcing the "sing" that it will be an all-county affair and that teachers will bring in their choruses, not for unit singing but to help with the audience singing.

Boy Scouts will open the program by presenting the flags of the United Nations, which will be used to decorate the front of the stage. No admission will be charged.

Sees Effort To Control Press in Paper Limits

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 9—Curtailment of newsprint is an "indirect method of suppressing and destroying freedom of the press," Rep. Dondero (R-Mich) said yesterday in asking house support for a resolution to ascertain whether the federal government is curtailing its output of printed matter.

Each day, Dondero said in a floor speech, an enormous volume of printed matter, most of it from government agencies, reaches the offices of congressmen.

"Freedom of the press is one of the guarantees under the constitution of the United States," he said. "Curtailment of newsprint is an indirect method of suppressing and destroying freedom of the press.

"I have introduced a resolution today asking the speaker of this house to appoint a committee of seven members to determine whether or not the federal government has placed its own house in order and to see whether there has been any curtailment in the amount of printed matter sent out by the government. Let Washington point the way and set the example before the freedom of the press is strangled by indirection."

I Hitch-Hike the Alcan Highway

Army Takes A Gamble—At 40 Below

Second of a series of six articles on the Alcan highway.

By SAM JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

EDMONTON, Alberta—Often in building the 1,681-mile Alcan highway between Fairbanks, Alaska, and the railhead at Dawson Creek, British Columbia, the Army had to gamble. On occasion it lost.

I hitch-hiked down the highway, and I saw one way chances sometimes turned against the Army.

It was at Nisutlin Bay in the Yukon. The temperature was 40 degrees below zero.

Our truck was stalled. The only protection against the cold was a punch-drunk oil drum that ate up spruce as fast as if you were stuffing in last week's funny papers. Sharing the fire were a dozen heavily padded soldiers, stolid with that sense of utter timelessness that the Yukon engenders.

Nisutlin Bay is a narrow arm of large and beautiful Lake Teslin. The Army figured that barge-type ferries, powered by outboard motors, would suffice there until the winter freeze made an ice bridge.

The bridge builders and pile driving equipment that might have been used there went down on the Liard, one of the great, racing rivers of the northland, and threw across an 1,100-foot bridge in nine days, then went on to other imperative tasks.

The winter freeze was followed by a sudden breakup. Ice blocks knocked the ferry out of operation. My driver, Private Stephen Brugman of West Liberty, Iowa, and I had been waiting eight days for the ice to re-freeze to the safe depth of 10 inches.

One driver swept across the ice at 45 miles an hour and made the opposite bank safely. Another tried it at 15 and broke through. He jumped to safety. Two others later went through the ice.

Across the bay were a hundred northbound trucks, stalled. They were part of an enterprise which may go down in history with the Pony Express — the Fairbanks Freight.

Trucks are all of Army design but made by different manufacturers. Brugman and I were in a 5-ton Studebaker.

Suddenly a sergeant walked up to the fire and addressed nobody in particular:

"Okay, you Studebakers. Try to hit the ice at 40 and keep it up."

With aching fingers, Brugman and I rolled four 450-pound drums off to a roadside dump. Heaven help the man who had to get them on a truck again.

Brugman had kept his engine running since early morning. With power on all ten wheels he took off, rocked his steel dinosaur through snowdrifts that had stalled two more impetuous drivers, and hit the ice.

BAR ASSOCIATION OPPOSES COMPULSORY FLAG SALUTE

Group Files Plea In Behalf of Jehovah's Witnesses.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The bill of rights committee of the American Bar association told the supreme court yesterday "the nation which survived Valley Forge and the dark days of the Civil war without compulsory flag salutes will not go to rack and ruin because a few children fail to participate in this ceremony on account of their religious beliefs."

In a brief filed as a "friend of the court," the committee urged the tribunal to overrule its 1940 decision holding constitutional a requirement by a Pennsylvania school district that children salute the American flag.

A new case, involving constitutionality of a similar West Virginia regulation, will be argued this week and will give the court an opportunity, if it so desires, to overrule the previous decision.

Four of the seven justices now on the court who participated in the 1940 ruling have expressed opposition to it. They are chief Justice Stone and Justices Black, Douglas and Murphy. Justices Jackson and Rutledge were not on the court in 1940.

A brief filed by counsel for the "Jehovah's Witnesses" involved in the West Virginia case asserted "the United States was founded as a haven and place of refuge for persons of all creeds to exercise their liberty of conscience without molestation."

HIGH COURT RULES IN HANDBILL CASES

Finds Against 2 Ordinances Aimed at Sect.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The supreme court declared unconstitutional yesterday ordinances passed by two municipalities regulating distribution of literature.

A Dallas, Tex., ordinance prohibiting the distribution upon the streets of handbills containing advertising matter was held to infringe "freedom of press and of religion."

In another decision, the tribunal termed "administrative censorship in an extreme form" a Paris, Tex., ordinance prohibiting the solicitation, without a permit from the mayor, of orders for books within the residence district of the municipality.

Both decisions were unanimous, but with one new justice, Rutledge, not participating.

Justice Black delivered the decision in the Dallas case. The ordinance was challenged by Mrs. Ella Jamison, a member of "Jehovah's Witnesses."

Justice Reed delivered the decision on a challenge of the Paris ordinance by Mrs. Daisy Largent, also a member of "Jehovah's Witnesses."

Among other actions, the court:

Refused to review a decision holding that protests against price schedules promulgated by the office of price administration must set forth specific objections in order to obtain a court review. An emergency court of appeals had ruled on a complaint brought by Mark K. Frank of Pittsburgh that correspondence with OPA did not constitute a formal protest.

Refused to review a decision that a company which furnishes watchmen to guard industrial concerns and other places of business is not engaged in a "service establishment" exempt from the wage-hour law. The decision was challenged by the McCane-Sondock detective agency of Houston, Texas, which supplies a night watchman service to clients.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

FARM GROUP HEARS WALLACE ADDRESS

Cites Way To Improve Position of America.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, March 9 — Vice President Henry A. Wallace suggests that Americans can raise their own standard of living after the war by helping the peoples of all other nations.

He so told a group of Ohio farmers yesterday in a speech which said that an isolationist or excessively nationalistic policy would not produce national security.

"And I believe," remarked, "that national security is our No. 1 business when we talk about postwar planning."

The most effective assistance which America can give in postwar reconstruction, Mr. Wallace asserted, "is the kind which helps other countries develop their agriculture and industry, and which at the same time increases our own prosperity.

"Those who really want to improve the standard of living of the American people know that the United States is now so much a part of the whole world that we can best help Americans by helping the peoples of all the world to help themselves."

The vice president declared he was "not urging Ohio farmers or any other farmers to give a bottle of milk a day to the Hottentots," but—

"People of other countries can enjoy higher standards of living when they learn to use their soils and their resources more effectively to produce the things they want. We in the United States can help them learn how to do these things, and also can help build the factories they need to get started."

As for national security, he asserted that farm folk and city folk alike "want to be secure not only against war, but against the suffering caused by business depression and unemployment."

He said the country was being flooded with propaganda for forms of isolationism which, if adopted, "would lead straight to World war No. 3."

Subs Sink Five Ships, U. S. Launches Seven

By The Associated Press

Loss of five United Nations merchant ships to axis submarines in the western Atlantic, announced last week, was more than balanced yesterday when five cargo vessels, a destroyer and a submarine slid down the ways of eastern shipyards.

The sinkings brought to 621 The Associated Press total of announced allied and neutral American ship losses in western Atlantic waters since Pearl Harbor and represented the highest weekly toll in those waters in more than a month.

The attack on a neutral Spanish ship caused speculation axis subs had begun their campaign of "sinking everything in sight" in the Atlantic.

DELAWARE OFFICIALS ON VISIT TO MARION

Make Study of City Garbage Collection System.

Two Delaware officials were in Marion yesterday to study the city's garbage collection system in preparation for starting a city collection service in Delaware.

Willis Aukland, Delaware county sanitarian, and Henry Turner, assistant sanitarian and city engineer, spent the afternoon with Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell, going over the office set-up, the contract with employes and discussing details of the Marion system.

Indications at the close of the conference were that the Delaware system would be patterned closely on the Marion system, Mr. Caldwell said.

F. G. Keiner of Columbus, who operates the city farm west of Marion has intimated that he also expects to operate a similar project near Delaware when that city begins its garbage collection service.

$15,000 Bull Bought for Delaware Farm

DELAWARE, O., March 9.—Lt. Com. William Kline of the U. S. Navy has paid $15,000 for "Coronation Leader," a Guernsey bull owned by the Fairlawn Farms of Adelphia, N. J., it has been announced here.

Commander Kline, serving the Navy at the Curtiss-Wright plant in Columbus, lives at "Windale," one of his farms south of Galena.

The purchase makes "Coronation Leader" the highest priced dairy sire ever purchased by a Delaware county herd owner. He will be delivered to the Kline farm as soon as certain state-required blood tests are completed. The bull's grand-dam sold for $22,000. He will leave 36 daughters in New Jersey. His father, "King," at Harlingen, N. J., has more than 60 daughters and 15 sons.

ACCEPTS GAS RATE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 9—City council voted to accept a public utilities commission order for an average gas rate of 56.22 cents a thousand cubic feet from the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., instead of a 48-cent rate proposed in 1939 ordinance, freeing Columbus from rate litigation for the first time in several years.

FORTRESSES BLAST TRAIN IN FRENCH RAIL YARDS

Ships Fly Through Nazi Defense To Hit Target.

By GLADWIN HILL
AP War Correspondent.

AT A U. S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, March 9.—U. S. Flying Fortresses escorted by RAF Spitfires plowed a path through Reichsmarshal Goering's best fighters yesterday and bombed a freight train in the railroad yards at Rennes, France.

"We sure plastered that target," said the tail-gunner, Sterling May of Sisters, Ore., a member of the crew of a Fortress piloted by Lieut. Lynn Mosier of Clearwater, Calif.

"You could see it miles away. Right after our bombs hit I could see a big billow of blue smoke go up."

The RAF Spitfire escort apparently took the Germans by surprise.

"One Focke-Wulf pulled up right alongside some of those Spits," said Co-pilot Harry Holt of Tallulah, La. "He apparently thought they were Focke-Wulfs. The Spits blew him right out of the sky.

"The Fortresses battled Goering's yellownoses for a full 45 minutes—from about three minutes before they reached the target to halfway back across the channel."

$25 Fine Levied On Charge of Assault

Milton Hopkins, 54, of 238 Patterson street, who was sentenced to the Columbus workhouse for 15 days last Monday on a charge of resisting police officers, was fined $25 and costs when arraigned in municipal court yesterday morning on a warrant charging him with assault and battery.

Hopkins has been in the county jail since last Monday to await arraignment on the warrant filed by William W. Bodley, operator of Bodley's Inn on Route 23, just north of Marion.

The warrant was an outcome of a fight in the inn a week ago Sunday. When refused permission to dance by the inn owner, Hopkins and a son, Lafayette, 24, of East George street, started a fight. Bodley charged that he was struck across the head with a chair by the father. At the East George street home of the son the two men resisted arrest by two city policemen and later four patrolmen and Sheriff W. J. Harruff and Deputy M. D. Baldwin took the two into custody.

The son is serving a workhouse term sheriff's deputies reported.

The father pleaded not guilty, but later entered a plea of guilty, and was fined $25 and costs on charges of intoxication and disorderly conduct and was given a 15-day workhouse sentence.

In addition the fine given him today by Judge W. Dexter Hazen, Hopkins also was ordered to pay medical fees and property damages amounting to $15 to Mr. Bodley.

BELIEVE OHIO FARMS WILL MEET FOOD GOAL

Bricker Calls Meeting To Consider Problem.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 9.—Gov. Bricker and Elmer F. Kruse, Ohio agricultural adjustment administration chairman expressed confidence today the state's farmers would set new production marks in 1943.

Bricker, announcing that a meeting of the Ohio war agriculture committee would be held here tomorrow to consider methods of increasing 1943 food output, said he believed farmers would "boost production records again this year, despite increased handicaps, if governmental agencies and and the people give them proper cooperation." Labor, machinery and fertilizer problems will be discussed at the meeting.

Kruse told Vice President Henry A. Wallace, who visited here yesterday, that except for a few crops requiring considerable hand labor, farmers expected to meet or exceed 1943 production goals despite manpower and machinery shortages. He based his report on a telegraphic survey of the state.

The survey showed this anticipated planting and production for 1943:

Soybeans: three per cent increase over 1942; goal calls for a two per cent increase.

Potatoes: increase of 12 per cent indicated; 16 per cent increase requested.

Field corn: an increase of 8 per cent. Goal 6 per cent.

Tomatoes: indications of 3 per cent increase.

Sweet corn: about 91 per cent of 1942 acreage; no 1943 goal.

Sugar beets: about 51,000 acres, approximately same as in 1942 as requested.

Cows and heifers kept for milk: approximately 5 per cent more milk cows will be kept on farms than were retained in 1942; an increase of 2 per cent asked.

Hogs: spring farrowing increase of 32 per cent as compared with the goal of 10 per cent; fall farrowing increase of 50 per cent. The goal is 15 per cent.

Hens and pullets: No goal set for hens and pullets kept on the farm for laying, but farmers intend to increase their numbers over 1942 by 28 per cent.

Ready Market Found for Plug Horse Team

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., March 9. — Last week Elmer Main of near Leonardsburg advertised a team of plug horses for sale. The advertisement was a plain statement of fact that they were no bargains. Following is a letter The Delaware Gazette received last week-end:

"It sure does pay to advertise in a good paper. In 36 hours after that ad came out I had 9 buyers. I never saw anything like it.

"The second buyer bought them and paid me my price. When the fourth man came and I told him they were sold, dam if I didn't feel sorry for him—he was so disappointed he just broke down and cried.

"Thanks again."

MADE BY Kellogg's IN BATTLE CREEK

They're making Southern Colonels out of Yankee Locomotives

If you had been in Mississippi that day you would have sworn you were dreaming!

For there, as big as life and just as powerful, was an Erie locomotive pulling a train of war-laden freight cars.

Seemed like home to one Yankee soldier boy who saw it—and he said so in a letter he wrote us just the other day.

But of course we already knew about that locomotive in Mississippi, and about the 69 other Erie engines now far from home in the service of the nation. For the sale or lease of motive power by one road to another is common practice these days. So is the interchange of other equipment.

Take any train hauling war goods from one part of the country to another. You'll find it made up of rolling stock from all over the nation—reefers from the Pacific, tankers from the Gulf, gondolas from the wheat belt and the ore-producing northwest, flats from Pennsylvania and New York, Ohio and Virginia.

This pooling of resources, this exchange of facilities, makes available to the nation the total power of its railroads. It spreads the transportation load evenly over all areas, saving labor and materials, speeding deliveries. But more than that, it illustrates a spirit of cooperation which not only helped build a great rail transportation system, but which has kept that system great, in war and peace, for long and profitable use by our people.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the marriage of Miss Andrea Evelyn Darrah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Darrah of 2868 Torrington road, Shaker Heights, and Ensign Richard Wyeth Olewiler, son of Rev. and Mrs. Howard L. Olewiler of 382 East Church street, which took place Wednesday, March 3, at Jacksonville, Fla., is being announced here today.

The ceremony was read at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon by Captain Reuben W. Shrum, chaplain, close friend of the bridegroom's family and a classmate of his father at Princeton seminary and university, and was the first nuptial ceremony to be held in the Navy chapel since its dedication Feb. 28.

MRS. RICHARD W. OLEWILER

The altar was banked with white gladioli and lighted with tall white tapers held in seven-branch candelabra. Preceding the ceremony, which was attended by Mrs. Darrah, Mrs. Olewiler and a group of close friends of the couple, Frank Marsteller, first class specialist, organist and choirmaster at the chapel, played a program of nuptial music and for the processional and recessional he played the traditional wedding marches.

The bride was unattended. Ensign Robert Chamberlain served as best man for the bridegroom and ushers were Lt. (junior grade) Marvin Magaziner and Ensign William Ash. Entering service at the same time the four men have been together throughout their training.

For her wedding Miss Darrah chose a dressmaker suit in navy blue with which she wore a navy blue hat and her corsage held white orchids. When the wedding party left for the George Washington hotel where Mrs. Darrah was hostess at a dinner for 12, the new Mrs. Olewiler donned a vivid red coat. Later Captain and Mrs. Shrum were hosts at an informal reception.

The bride attended DePauw university where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Feb. 15 was graduated from the department of home economics at Flora Stone Mather college, Cleveland. Ensign Olewiler attended Emery university at Atlanta, Ga., where he affiliated with Sigma Pi fraternity and was graduated from Western Reserve university in 1941. He is in the materiel office of the bomber patrol squadron, U. S. Naval Air station at Jacksonville, Fla., where he and his bride will make their home for the present.

Mrs. Annabelle Layton was given a birthday handkerchief shower when the Val Dura club met Friday evening with Mrs. Abigal McKibben on East George street. Euchre honors went to Mrs. Layton; Mrs. Mildred Braham and Mrs. Maude Fox. Mrs. Florence Herron received the lone hand award and was consoled. The club voted to send a plant to Mrs. Pauline Snyder, president of the club, who is ill.

Drake Home At Agosta Is Scene of Wedding Rites

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE DRAKE of Agosta are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Evelyn Kathryn, to Edwin H. Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wood of near Richwood.

The ceremony was read at the bride's home Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock by Rev. A. Erwin Bailey of Agosta Methodist church before an improvised altar of white gladioli and two seven-branch candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Navy blue street length dress trimmed in white. Her only jewelry was a gold necklace, a gift of the bridegroom. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds.

Miss Jeanne Drake, maid of honor and sister of the bride, wore a bright blue chiffon velvet dress and a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Her gift from the bride was a light blue plastic compact. Mr. Wood's gift to his best man, Ernest Sanrote of near Prospect, was a necktie.

Mrs. Drake was costumed in a turf tan dress of crepe and Mrs. Wood's dress was of rose crepe. Their corsages were of sweetpeas.

The candles were lighted by the bride's sisters, Joanne and Dorothy Drake, who also sang "Cielito Lindo" by J. M. Meshill before the ceremony. They were costumed in blue and red corduroy suits and they wore gold crosses given them by the bride.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Vivian Drake, sister of the bride, played "Waltz" by Brahms, "Liebestraum" by Liszt and "Lohengrin" by Wagner. Her gift from the bride was a gold bracelet.

Following the wedding a reception was given at the Drake home. The table was centered by a three-tiered wedding cake decorated in the bride's colors of pink and blue and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. On either end of the table were pink candles in blue holders. Miss Vivian Drake presided at the reception.

To Relieve Bad Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Swift Acting, and Saves Big Money. Easily Mixed.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe, mixed in your own kitchen. It gives you about four times as much cough syrup for your money, and you'll find it wonderful, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. (You can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

GAS EMERGENCY IS PAST

On Sunday evening and Monday morning conditions required that we appeal to all of our customers who could be reached to make certain curtailments in their use of gas. This request was made by authority of the Office of War Information, the War Production Board and the United States Army. Your response was most gratifying and the gas saved permitted many war industries to continue production Monday which otherwise would have been forced to close down.

WE THANK YOU

Our thanks to our customers and to the media through which you were reached are most sincere. Perhaps the greatest appreciation would come from the men of our armed forces if they could know how your temporary inconvenience in curtailing the uses of gas meant no stoppage in the flow of armaments and supplies to them.

Many new gas wells will be drilled before another winter to replace a depleted supply caused by unprecedented domestic and industrial demands. It is our sincere hope that it will not be necessary again to make a request of this nature.

Pensioners Warned of Confidence Game

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 9—Karl R. Babb, chief of the division of aid for the aged, today asked Ohio's old age pensioners to report persons attempting to obtain money by promising pension increases.

He said pensioners in nine southern Ohio counties had been victimized in the last nine months by individuals claiming to represent the state and making such promises or asking funds purportedly for the welfare of men in the armed service.

Edward Gockenbach, chief investigator for the division, reported that Benny Thomas Smith, 47, of Dayton had pleaded guilty at Hillsboro to obtaining money under false pretenses and was fined $100 and sentenced to 60 days in jail. Gockenbach said Smith had promised to arrange pension increases for an elderly Highland county couple.

Other counties in which money had been obtained from pensioners are Scioto, Jackson, Meigs, Athens, Butler and Lawrence counties, Babb declared.

Union Wants Time on Rickenbacker Program

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., March 9—Paul Fessenden, executive secretary of the Akron industrial union council, said today the CIO central body had forwarded to the Ohio legislature a request that a representative of the national maritime union be invited to address the assembly the same day Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker appears.

The request was contained in a resolution adopted by the AIUC last night. Fessenden reported Rickenbacker was invited some time ago to speak to the legislature.

The AIUC secretary said the resolution described Rickenbacker as "a mouthpiece for the National Association of Manufacturers."

Atkinson Sees Many Idle in Post-War Days

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 9—Administrator Herschel C. Atkinson of Ohio's bureau of unemployment compensation believes that half of the state's 2,000,000 industrial workers will find themselves temporarily without jobs after the war's end.

He made that estimate before the senate commerce and labor committee last night in support of a bill to tax expanded war industries an additional $5,000,000 a year to bolster the jobless fund to meet anticipated post-war needs.

Atkinson said his estimate was only a guess.

The proposed measure would impose a surtax of one-tenth of one per cent on payrolls of expanded war industries. This is in addition to the present merit-rating system of taxing payrolls to provide jobless insurance funds. Business generally approved the surtax.

Sky's the Limit

AS THE WORD picture of what happened in the Bismarck sea is filled in, one conclusion becomes mandatory. It is that the possibilities of air power are just beginning to be realized. Germany's blitz at Britain's expense was terrible, but not half so terrific as Britain's blitz at Germany's expense, and there will be worse to come. What the Japanese did at Pearl Harbor was only a foretaste of what Americans now are doing to them. Day by day, the technique of this new and terrible kind of war is being added to and polished. The range of planes is being increased. Their fire-power is being augmented. The "block buster" is paving the way for the "town buster." Pilots and aerial strategists are learning new skills and tactics in the school of experience. The vision of the Mitchells and the de Seversky's, instead of being cast too far, is proving too limited. Every prediction based on what was or what might conceivably be is being discounted hourly as new horizons stand revealed—horizons that reach already into the stratosphere. The aggressor nations which dreamed of world conquest by unlimited use of air power simply failed to comprehend the sword by which they must perish.

Lend-Lease Rumors

EDWARD R. STETTINIUS, lend lease administrator who has been telling congress about his agency, goes straight to the public with his story in the current issue of the American. He acknowledges that rumor is misrepresenting what has been done; specifically, that rumor makes it appear that lend-lease is solely responsible for food shortages. This he denies, though admitting that lend-lease has been one factor.

Other factors have been the supplying of troops, with enormously augmented appetites, and war-working civilians who have been using their greatly increased food-purchasing power. Using beef as an example, Mr. Stettinius shows how the supply sent to Europe was more than offset by beef supplied to our troops by Australia and New Zealand. But meanwhile at home beef demand grew, with acute shortage as the result.

In the case of other commodities, such as milk products, lend-lease has subtracted considerable quantities from the available supply and plans to subtract even more. Though a relatively small part, these shipments have brought victory years nearer than it might otherwise have been. Mr. Stettinius asserts. "In so doing, it has saved the lives of countless thousands of our American soldiers and sailors."

Nothing could do more harm to the war effort of the United Nations than misunderstanding of the lend-lease function. It is a proposition in comparative values: Whether the sacrifice of foodstuffs to bring the war to a quicker conclusion and assure victory is justifiable, or whether the United States would prefer to eat better and prolong the war. Mr. Stettinius, who has the responsibility for lend-lease administration, unhesitatingly chooses to sacrifice a little food to save a lot of casualties.

Apathy in Civilian Defense

CIVILIAN DEFENSE DIRECTOR JAMES M. LANDIS does well to bring the organization's problem of apathy into the open. Discussion may clear the air.

For instance, his warning that if civilian defense enrollment drops below a million he may ask congress for authority to draft members should have the effect of a small bomb on discussion of civilian defense in general.

Plainly, what Mr. Landis and the hundreds of thousands of earnest men and women who share his concern are up against is the identical problem the army fretted about when it had hordes of selectees on its hands before war was declared. The selectees lacked training equipment and, in many cases, adequate direction. They lacked a sense of purpose. They were preparing to deal with something that hadn't happened and might not happen. When it did happen, of course, their attitude was transformed overnight. They know then what they had to do. They were given a sense of purpose. They no longer were going through the motions but doing the real thing.

Apathy in civilian defense is not a local phenomenon. The activity rate fluctuates in communities, but even in those with the best theoretical reason for being prepared to deal with any attack—the coastal cities—lack of a strong sense of purpose is a problem. Even in England, according to reports, civilian defense has been held together only with great effort since the dark days of 1940 when the luftwaffe was at the height of its fury. Mr. Landis will need to be a philosopher to understand the frailties of his fellow citizens, just as they have needed to be philosophers to understand some of the things about civilian defense that either were too silly for words or too wise for comprehension.

News Behind the News

Rumors of Jap Attempt To Knock Out China Viewed as "Chow Mein."

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 9 — A [illegible] made up the Tojo-Chiang [illegible] with fears and hopes that a drive is [illegible] the war.

The time to count the time for the Japs to lay it if they can, but a large part of their available fighting power on the ground in south China has exposed the truth that they will do need to hold on to what they have. Any idea of an early offensive to crush the Chinese nation shows [illegible] or strategic [illegible] for baloney in the Orient.

When General MacArthur's fliers blasted the whole 22-ship Jap convoy out of the water in the Bismarck sea, they paved to a new realization understanding of the war in the Far East. News interpretation naturally played up the effect that it had in saving Australia, [illegible] the objective, but MacArthur [illegible] saving China as much as Australia.

The Japs have been required to commit themselves to reinforcements of men, planes and ammunition to sustain their vast conquest of the South Pacific, thereby diminishing their power and possibilities in front of Chiang Kai-shek. The sinking of their convoy means they will have to send even more.

This not only takes away from China the fighting power necessary for the Japs to knock China out, but also the indispensable ships (upon which latter items they are exceptionally short). As long as the bulk of Jap military strength is pledged to Manchuria and the South Seas, Chiang need have no grave fears.

MacArthur's kind of aid to China is unfortunately not being assessed in the current tabulation of our lend-lease deficiencies.

Russia

A satisfactory assessment of the war on the Russian front is harder to make. In the war of movement in progress there, static lines mean little and the question is how much of the German army has been destroyed and how much power the Russians have left.

This is of especial importance to us in view of the imminence of our promised invasion of the continent this year, because it may largely determine what we will have to face.

Some authorities claim the heavy fighting in Russia has been at only a few strong points, such as Stalingrad, the Donets basin, and the Caucasus. Except at Stalingrad, they say Hitler has called heavily on the forces of the conquered nations, particularly Rumania and Italy, while saving [illegible] them.

The [illegible] evidence indicates, however, that Hitler has not been able to get sufficient men from the satellites to force the war off on them. He got about 12 divisions from Italy (now withdrawn, but no corset replaced at least in part), nine from Hungary, one from Spain, and probably 15 from Rumania.

Certainly, he tapped Rumania harder than anyone else, and some estimates of Rumanian troops on the front run as high as 30 divisions.

But the best information is that no more than 40 divisions of satellites' troops could be made to fight in Russia for Hitler—a paltry 600,000.

The number of German divisions on the front has been reported at 180—2,700,000 troops.

Certainly then, the best of the German eastern army has been in Russian fighting and has not been saved for Certainly also, German production is declining and the manpower squeeze is so great that he has been forced to take men out of the army and put them back in the factories, in some instances.

How he can organize a spring offensive comparable in any way to that of last year is beyond comprehension of any outside authority.

True, his losses have not amounted to anything like the fantastic Russian claims (else his entire army would now be twice annihilated), but where he is going to get the men, planes and equipment to try to rush back to Stalingrad is hard to imagine.

The general expectation is that he will retire to a shorter eastern line which can be defended by strongly holds a few points against the Russians, and then switch his endeavors mainly to meet our expected blows—by a march through Spain, an attack on Turkey or a purely defensive internal consolidation.

Tunisia

Confidence here in the Tunisian outcome has in no way been diminished by recently discovered American defects on that front.

The best fighting weather opens the latter part of this month, and the promised offensive to eliminate the Nazis in North Africa may then be expected—with the bigger blow directly at the continent (Norway? Italy? Balkans, Spain?) coming either before, simultaneously, or shortly thereafter.

Women Go Hatless

LONDON — Women and girls may attend church hatless in at least two of the largest dioceses of the Church of England. One is the diocese of the new Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. William Temple, primate of the Anglican church, who issued a pronunciamento altering traditional Catholic custom.

The London Church Times reported that although the Archbishop has no lawful authority on such questions outside his own diocese, that the popular press has hailed the step as another proof of the church's readiness to adapt itself to the times.

"In view of the revolution in social habits since the first century," The Times said, "no binding authority attaches to St. Paul's admonition condemning women who worship God with uncovered heads."

Pay-In-Advance

It is being pointed out in connection with the Ruml plan for making income tax payments that pay-as-you-go is really a misnomer. The plan's real purpose is to start a pay-in-advance system.

Income for a calendar year is not realized until the last moment of the year; a transaction terminating at midnight on Dec. 31 might wipe out all income for the year. Technically, it is impossible to pay tax on income for a year, therefore, until the year is over.

Paying in advance long has been the practice in Great Britain. A portion of all income, dividends, annuities, etc., is withheld at the source. If this proves to be too much, it is passed on to the owner, or if too little is supplemented by further payments.

The U. S. treasury, incidentally, has power under the law to allow deferment in whole or in part for income taxes. The amount unpaid may be amortized over a period of years, or may be paid up later in a lump sum. This was done widely during the depression of 1929-32 when income tax rates were lower than they are now. Deferred payments are subject to an interest charge of 6 per cent annually, but even this may be remitted at the treasury's discretion.

Bomber Does Loop

By The Associated Press

LONDON—"You can't loop a heavy bomber" is a longtime axiom in flying circles but a British Lancaster, one of the heaviest planes in the air, recently did a complete loop during a raid over Germany and did it with a full load of many tons of bombs.

It wasn't an intential loop, but happened while the four-engined plane was in a steep climb and a large shell exploded just beneath it, tossing it over on its back. The pilot retained control and carried it on through the loop, coming out of it in a dive that probably shot the ship's speed past 400 m.p.h. The plane not only was unharmed, but flew on to its objective and dropped its bombs. After its return to base it was examined carefully from prop to rudder. No structural damage was found.

Star Sit-Upper

By The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Va.—Virginia Military Institute physical education instructors think that small Stuart D. Loughborough, a first-year Cadet from Richmond, Va., ought to get credit for setting a new record of some kind.

When an instructor told a class taking a physical fitness test to "see how many sit-ups you can do," most of the boys had to quit after 20 or 30 sit-ups.

The VMI surgeon finally told Loughborough it was time to stop. Loughborough's record was two hours and 1,371 sit-ups.

ANOTHER SHORTAGE

Finland Struggles Betwixt and Between

New Russian Advance Again Threatens Its Security.

RISTO RYTI, president of Finland, tried to make it clear in his inaugural address at the beginning of his second term March 1 why his country is in the war. Finland, he said, is fighting for its security, threatened by Russia. It recognizes no issue in the war other than safety for Finland.

This seems to mean that if its security could be guaranteed against Russia, Finland would cease to fight Russia with German aid. With Russian troops now advancing in the north toward the Finnish frontier, President Ryti and his cabinet now are believed to be bargaining frantically for the best possible terms.

The United States, which has been applying pressure on the Finns to get them out the war, is in an anomalous position—something like that of the Finns, themselves. War, like politics, makes strange bedfellows. When Russia invaded Finland in 1939, American sympathy belonged to Finland. But when Russia, invaded by Germany, became an ally of Great Britain and later of the United States, after this country went into the war, American sympathy belonged to Russia.

Today a Finnish Army is on Russian soil, and German forces are using Finnish territory as a base for attacking United Nations convoys to Russia. Even if Finland decided to drop out of the war, it would have to rid itself of the German forces, which undoubtedly are present in sufficient force to execute Finnish leaders and take over the government.

SOVIET Union demands on Finland in 1939 were rejected on the grounds they would make that country a Soviet protectorate, whereupon Russia opened war. As a result, it was expelled from the League of Nations for unjustified aggression. Finland fought bravely, but was forced to cede about one tenth of its area, containing about one eighth of its population, to Russia in the peace treaty made in March 1940.

In September 1940, Finland over British protests, granted Germany the use of certain railroads to transport troops to northern Norway. On June 17, 1941, five days before Germany invaded Russia, Finland withdrew from the League of Nations. Russia thereupon declared that Finland was evincing warlike intentions by mobilizing its army and evacuating civilians from certain cities. When Hitler announced his war on Russia, he spoke of German troops being "united with their Finnish comrades" to protect Finnish soil.

Hostilities seem to have opened with Russian air attacks, though Moscow claimed these were delivered only against German forces in Finland and that almost at the same time Finnish forces had attacked Russian position.

Within Finland, some opposition was manifested to the new war; it increased as Finland regained the territory it had lost to Russia in the 1940 settlement and proceeded to cross the old Russian frontier. Finland now holds about as much territory in Russia as Russia took from Finland. The Finno-Russian front has been quiet for a long time. In November 1941, Finland signed the anti-Comintern pact, but never became a member of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo military alliance.

IN 1939, when American sympathy was with Finland, congress voted the Finns a credit of $10,000,000, later increased to $30,000,000 for non-military purposes. Congress also authorized Finland to postpone war debt payments due in 1940, 1941 and 1942, in recognition of an unbroken record of faithful payments on its obligation.

In June 1941, when American sympathy shifted to Russia, the United States froze Finnish funds and credits in this country. In November, Secretary of State Hull warned Finland that its course was alienating American sympathy. In December, following the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor, the United States took over Finnish vessels in American ports.

The Turps

Soldiers Returning Home May [illegible] Things Upside Down When War Is Over but It's Not Certain.

By DAMON RUNYON

Ethel Turp Writes from Brooklyn:

DEAR SIR: Last night I was reading the paper and I said to my pops, say pops you know that when Joe and the rest of the boys get back from the war they are going to change this country around and make everything different?

My pops said, where did you hear that, daughter? I said, it's in this paper. My moms said, what's wrong with that idea time they changed a few things in this country, and my pops said, what things, for instance. My moms said, well, for instance the way McNally the groceryman bullies me when I go there to buy things for you to eat.

She said, you would think he was some czar the way he talks to me. I hope the first change the boys make in this country after the war is to put him out of business. My pops didn't answer her but only grunted and after a while I said, well, pops do you believe what the paper says about Joe and the other boys changing everything when they come home.

No, daughter, my pops said, I don't think they will but you never can tell. Look at what happened after the last war. I said, well, what happened, pops? Did they change things? He said, I should say they did. It was terrible for awhile. You see, Ethel, when the boys went away to that war nearly everybody was a Democrat but right away after they got back home you never saw so many Republicans as we had in this country.

HE said there was so many of them they pushed the Democrats out of the offices in Washington and put themselves in. We was a dickens of a long time getting them rousted out of there. Why, even right here in Brooklyn the Republicans got so thick that we could only beat them about four to one in some of the elections and our party leaders over here were really scared.

I said, pops, do you mean that the boys who were Democrats when they went away were Republicans when they came back? He said that must have been it, daughter, but all I know for sure is that we had good Democrats in the offices in Washington when the boys went to the war and Republicans in them soon after they came back and I would hate to see anything like that happen again.

I said, well pops, there is one fellow who was a Democrat when he went to the war and who will be one when he comes back from it and that is my husband Joe Turp. My Joe will never change his politics and pops said, I hope you are right Ethel. I said, I know I am right. My Joe will always vote for President Roosevelt. He has never voted for anybody else since he came of age and he would not turn now no matter what happens.

MY POPS said, Ethel, if Joe and all the rest of the boys will remember to do that when they come back, you needn't worry about anything you read in the paper about everything being different. My moms said, yes, but what good is it going to do me if things keep on the same as ever and old McNally goes on talking to me the way he does? My pops said, we'll take care of McNally later on.

In the meantime, my moms said, you won't get many groceries and besides you ought to be ashamed of yourself for talking as if the important thing after the war is for the Democrats to stay in the offices in Washington. There are a million things more important and my pops said, yes, but not to the Democrats.

Yours truly,

Ethel Turp.

So They Say—

Each of you has a brother, son, husband or very dear friend serving somewhere in the armed forces. The American Red Cross is the single organized agency that brings to that man those things that have no place in official equipment tables, but do so much for his well-being and morale.—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In time of danger we turn to the young and they do not fail us. When the call is for action and attack, youth responds.—George D. Stoddard, New York commissioner of education.

To plan forms and institutions now for the fast moving world is speculative. The other peoples have their own ideas, which are not our ideas. Our paternalistic ways do not make us any too popular.—Alf M. Landon.

We must rid ourselves of our isolationists' dream. We must stop regretting that all this happened to us, and realize that we can turn this barren, ghastly tragedy into a tremendous opportunity to create the world of the future. —Rep. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas.

American planes have asserted themselves and there is little doubt in my mind about victory in Tunisia.—Lieut. Col. Louis C. Plain, back from North Africa.

There should be some provision in the manpower program for leaving a nucleus in the colleges of men whose aptitudes qualify them for our long range needs. If we are to risk our lives for freedom, we must at the same time do all we can to preserve the deep springs from which it flows.—Wendell Willkie.

Hitler will strike wherever he believes the element of surprise is most in his favor. He wants pictures of burning American cities to show his people.—Civilian Defense Director James Landis.

Bismarck Sea

The Bismarck sea, locale of the battle in which a Japanese armada was destroyed by Allied air power, is an egg-shaped area of the Pacific, off the northern coast of New Guinea.

This body of water is enclosed on the northeast and part of the south by the Bismarck Archipelago, from which its name is derived. The two large islands of the group form an arc-like end-piece separating the sea as a small Bismarck sea from the broad expanse of the Pacific.

Bismarck sea is somewhat larger than Lake Superior and Michigan combined. The sea and the island group were named in 1884 for Chancellor Bismarck, who seized the islands for Germany while ownership negotiations with Britain were pending. Formerly, the islands were known as the New Britain group. The two large islands were named Neu Pommern and Neu Mecklenburg, replacing the old names of New Britain and New Ireland. After World war I the islands became British by mandate to Australia and all English names were revived.

OVERSHADOWED.

Beset by troubles, a circus owner says he probably won't go out next year. Anyhow, it may not be easy in 1943 to sell the idea that the "greatest show on earth" is offered in a tent.—Omaha World-Herald.

Rommel's Strength and Skill Still Worry To Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

[illegible] Rommel's ill-fated assault on General Montgomery's [illegible] Army in front of [illegible] fortified Mareth line [illegible] effort on the part of [illegible] Fox of the Desert" to [illegible] enemy's preparations [illegible] another offensive, and [illegible] the cards that the [illegible] may strike again.

[illegible] that Montgomery [illegible] and strength still stay [illegible]. That's more than luck. Rommel is one of the smartest generals of the day, but for the past six months he's been giving credit to the Cromwellian-[illegible] Britain who expressed the view to me not long ago that his adversary was a great soldier.

The fresh axis reversal emphasizes the growing difficulties of the German defensive problem in the last narrow strip of northern Africa remaining to Hitler. The forces under Rommel in the south and General Von Arnim in the far north are in danger of being annihilated, or of getting caught in the huge allied lemon-squeezer, with no escape except into the Mediterranean.

Montgomery is threatening aggressively from the south. British, American and French forces are pressing in from the west.

That axis front will be smashed in due course. The allies have suffered reverses, but nothing of a major nature.

When I left northern Africa, military men didn't expect the Tunisian show to be long-drawn-out. However, they had no doubt the axis would give plenty of trouble.

It mustn't be overlooked the axis is holding prepared positions with perhaps a quarter of a million troops. Those positions have been thoroughly organized for defense.

Then, too, the United Nations forces are handicapped by extended lines of communication.

The allies are credited with having perhaps twice as many troops as the axis. Moreover, while our supplies have to be brought in over long distances we are getting far more than the enemy. Although he is close to Sicily, the British Navy and allied warplanes are raising havoc with axis transports. In other words we are piling up superior resources and striking power.

Marshal Rommel and General Von Arnim are, of course, performing one of those rather thankless holding operations for their master. Their business is to hang on as long as they can in order to give him time to pull himself together on the continent.

Rommel is the only Nazi general I have heard spoken of in this war in terms of respect and even admiration by allied officers. He has the reputation on the fighting front in North Africa of being a good sport.

COLUMBUS, O., March 9—Mrs. Ruby Evelyn Cremeans, 23, will be arraigned Friday before U. S. Judge Mell G. Underwood on a charge of kidnaping eight-month-old Daniel Scanlon from St. Ann's infant asylum here last Oct. 12.

A federal grand jury indicted the Huntington, W. Va., woman under the Lindbergh law yesterday but took no action in the cases of another woman and four men held here in connection with the case. YOUTH WITH STOLEN AUTO UNDER ARREST

Nabbed After Trying To Sell Tire to Waldo Marshal.

Charged with driving a stolen automobile, William Cornelius, 21, of Cincinnati, was held in city prison this morning awaiting arrival of Bexley, O., officials to remove him to Bexley.

Cornelius was arrested at 7 last night at the Waldo filling station operated by Marshal I. O. Baker, the state patrol reported.

According to the state patrol, Marshal Baker called the patrol when Cornelius tried to sell a tire. The car was one which had been reported stolen at 4:30 yesterday afternoon at Bexley from Verna F. Beggs of Columbus. The report had been broadcast on the state patrol radio.

Cornelius told the patrol that he had been in the United States Marine Corps and was wounded at Pearl Harbor. He had body scars which he said were the result of wounds suffered on Dec. 7, 1941. The patrol reported that he said he had a medical discharge from the Marine Corps. Although he was not carrying the discharge papers he had with him an official release from the Corps, granted at Philadelphia.

The state patrol planned to question him further before Bexley officials arrived.

NAVY CLUB SEEKS PENSION SUPPORT

Will Write Congressman on World War II Measure.

The Marion Navy club at a meeting Monday night, a telegram was ordered sent to Congressman Frederick C. Smith seeking his support of House Bill No. 1660 which would provide pensions for widows and orphans of men who lose their lives in World War II.

Consideration was given a communication from Navy club national headquarters about the advisability of holding a national convention in 1943. The club voted that such a convention be waived and current national officers be continued in office for another year.

The club voted an $8.25 contribution to the Red Cross.

It was reported that since Marion county has nearly 500 men in the Naval service, and since this record places our county near the top in per capita representation, nationally, a request has been made to the committee in charge of the county honor roll to allow the club to place small metal anchors after the names of those men who are serving in that branch.

In a social hour refreshments were served and a Navy quiz program was conducted with Francis McKinney winning the award. Chief Charles F. Silber was consoled.

The committee in charge of this month's entertainment includes Chief John Dugan, Martin Wolfe, Omar Goodrich and Floyd Seaton. The club has been invited to attend a card party of the auxiliary on March 13.

VICTOR GILLIS QUITS CITY POLICE SERVICE

Resigns To Become Erie Railroad Sergeant.

Resignation of Victor A. Gillis of 328 Thew avenue as a patrolman on the city police force, effective yesterday, was announced today by Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell.

Mr. Gillis resigned to accept a position as sergeant in the Erie railroad police force. Capt. H. C. Smith of the Erie force said Gillis will be assigned to the Marion territory, which extends from Galion west to Ohio City and south to Dayton, but that for the present most of his work will be in the immediate vicinity of Marion.

The resignation was presented to Police Chief William E. Marks on March 5, and a copy was sent to the safety-service director.

Mr. Gillis began his service with the city on Aug. 1, 1939.

His resignation leaves two vacancies on the force, the other a position which was created but for which no eligible man could be found.

The eligibility list of the civil service commission has been exhausted, George T. Geran, secretary of the commission, said this morning.

Some time after March 15 a meeting of the commission will be called to determine whether an examination will be conducted, according to Mr. Geran.

OWI Backs Kay Kyser's Appeal from Draft

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 9 — Band Leader Kay Kyser's appeal to President Roosevelt from a 1-A draft classification is being supported by the office of war information.

Asserting that the 37-year-old Kyser probably would be given a band leading job in the Army if he were inducted, OWI Director Elmer Davis said last night: "We think he is doing more useful work now." Kyser is a consultant on OWI's radio advisory committee and as a leader in bond-selling drives.

Kyser's own appeal from his 1-A classification was based on the contention that he is in essential war work because of his morale-building activities.

RUSSIA KEEPS U. S. AID QUIET

Ambassador Says People Not Told of Help Received from America.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 9—Admiral William H. Standley, United States ambassador to Moscow, told a press conference yesterday the Russian people are not being informed of the extent of help they are getting from America and declared the situation was unfair to "the plain American people who are digging down in their own pockets."

"I have carefully looked for an admission in the Russian press that they receive material aid from America," he said. "Yet I have failed to find any real acknowledgment of it. * * *

"I find no political motive to this. It is only an effort to create the impression with their own people that they are pulling themselves through by their own bootstraps. * * *

Standley pointed out that a new lend-lease bill is now before congress in Washington and added:

"The American congress is big-hearted and generous, but if you give it the impression that its help means nothing there might be a different story."

When it was recalled to Standley that several Russian generals had told foreign correspondents recently that they were getting no American help at the front except trucks, the ambassador said:

"They are getting plenty of other kinds of war material. If it's not at the front I don't know what they are doing with it."

Among the things which the Russians are getting, Standley declared; Are "planes by the thousands."

But, he declared, "the Russian people don't seem to know it."

"There's no question about the Soviets trying to create the impression abroad as well as at home that they are fighting the war alone," the ambassador asserted.

Standley said he planned to see Premier Stalin soon, but did not elaborate on the statement.

Asked to comment on the second front question, he replied he was not sure what the Russians would consider a second front.

British Report on Aid to Russia

Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, British production minister, told a meeting at Newcastle Feb. 21, celebrating Russia's Red army anniversary, that the United States and Britain had together sent Russia nearly 6,200 tanks and 5,000 aircraft between October, 1941, and December, 1942. He said the United States had sent 3,200 tanks and about 2,600 planes, as well as most of a shipment of 85,000 trucks.

In addition, he declared, the British-American contribution to the war front included 50,000 tons of rubber, 831,000 deadweight tons of machine tools, metals, ammunition and small arms, and 70,000,000 round of small arms ammunition. The tanks and planes, he said were sufficient to equip 32 armored divisions and 400 aerial squadrons.

In Washington Sunday, E. R. Stettinius Jr., lease-lend administrator, revealed that in addition to planes and tanks, this country has sent Russia 3,000,000 pairs of heavy boots, 18,000 tons of sole leather, 17,500 jeeps and armored cars, 1,300 military tractors, 75,000 tons of rails and 17,000 tons of other railroad equipment, 140,000 field telephones, hundreds of thousands of miles of field telephone wire, 268,000 tons of petroleum products, 580,000 tons of steel, 125,000 tons of toluo and other chemicals, and 161,000 tons of aluminum, copper, zinc and other metals.

RAF RAID

planes also were over the Netherlands.

Britain Is Quiet

The RAF raid last night, which came as Britain enjoyed another night free from attack by enemy planes, was a swift follow-up to a smashing assault by American Flying Fortresses and Liberators yesterday on the important railway centers of Rouen and Rennes in France.

The big American bombers were credited with shooting down more than a score of the German fighter planes. RAF and allied fighters which escorted the bombers were reported to have brought down five additional enemy planes.

Allied losses consisted of four bombers and two fighters.

Sandwiched in between the American daylight attack on France and last night's assault on southern Germany was a dusk raid by RAF mosquito bombers on railway targets at Kingen in northwest Germany and Aalnoye near Valenciennes in northern France. One bomber was lost in this foray.

Welles Makes Statement on Standley's Remarks

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 9—Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles said today that Ambassador William H. Standley's statement in Moscow that the Russian people were not completely informed of American lend-lease aid to the Soviets, was made without prior consultation with the government in Washington.

Welles made this statement at his press conference and added that he had cabled Standley for a text of whatever remarks he may have made to the press.

No reply had yet been received, Welles said, adding that until the requested text is at hand he prefers not to comment in any detail.

The undersecretary said that the understanding which existed between the United Nations in the great enterprise in which they were joined for the purpose of defeating utterly the axis tyrannies and securing the security and liberties of the peoples of the United Nations would not be worth very much if it were not based on complete trust and understanding between all of them.

In his opinion, Welles said such understanding and trust exists.

Concluding, Welles said he was sure that Admiral Standley's remarks could not have been intended to and did not cast any doubt on that trust and understanding.

Edwin W. King, assistant works manager of the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing Co. of Mt. Gilead, was the speaker for the monthly meeting of the Marion Chapter of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers, last night at Hotel Harding. Covers were placed for approximately 30 members from Marion, Delaware, Union and other surrounding counties, at the dinner which preceded the program hour. The group was joined by others interested in the talk later in the evening.

Mr. King outlined the history and theories underlying the hydraulic press and told of the advancement in press adaption. He showed several pictures and diagrams showing the patented pumps used on the presses and the developments in speeding the action of the presses. His talk was followed by an open discussion by the group.

The meeting was preceded by a dinner meeting of the executive committee.

LONDON HAS FIRST DAY RAID IN MONTH

LONDON, March 9—London had its first daylight alert in nearly a month in midafternoon today but the all clear was sounded a short time later without any gunfire or bombs having been heard in the downtown part of the city.

The alarm was occasioned by two enemy planes approaching the London area from the south coast.

The sirens were sounded in the midst of one of the most gala weeks London has had since the fall of France. Trafalgar square was bedecked with flags, street corner amplifiers were blaring national music and well-known types of RAF planes were on display throughout the city to promote the sales of saving certificates in the wings for victory campaign.

The alert was the second sounded this week in the British capital. The previous one was early Monday morning when one plane from a group of about 25 attacking the coast slipped over the city and was driven off by a thick barrage.

Today's alarm was the first in daylight in nearly a month. The last one was Feb. 10. The last time bombs were dropped in London was Jan. 20 when Nazi fighter-bombers darted through the flak ring and bombed a school, killing 47 pupils and teachers.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 9—Madame Chiang Kai-shek returned to New York from New England today for a few days rest before resuming her cross-country tour.

Originally planning to leave Wellesley in the morning, Mme. Chiang delayed her departure to speak to a crowd of thousands gathered in Boston symphony hall last night.

Harding Faces Grandview in Central District Class A Tourney Tonight

Prexies Favored To Meet Strong Newark Team in Finals Next Week.

Marion Harding, one of the [illegible] Central district Class A tournament, meets Grandview in a second round game tonight at [illegible] state champions.

The game is the second of a [illegible] be run off tonight. Play will be [illegible] time, or 9 on Marion time.

The first game, match for a [illegible] team against the city champ[illegible] Central, looms as the [illegible] before a host of the record [illegible] Aggies turned back West 48-46 [illegible] the only [illegible] meet on an even game [illegible] time. This game will start at 6 p. m. (7 p. m. Marion time).

Newark Best

[illegible] the Aggies [illegible] some way of the New [illegible] the court Newark escape and to keep through the upper [illegible] and meet Harding in the [illegible] next Monday.

Tough Games Ahead

While this is the [illegible] of tournament officials, Coach Dewey N. Bohyer and the Presidents are well aware of the tough road ahead. For instance, Grandview, Harding's current worry, breezed through to a victory-less season, losing 14 in a row. Nevertheless the Columbus team came up with a 38-31, upset win over the napless Yellow Jackets.

By the same token, and if Harding repeats its miserable performance of the North game, Grandview might spring another upset.

However, Harding's trouble in the opener last Saturday seemed to be a highly-developed case of jitters. The Prexies failed to maneuver into position and also were woefully weak when it came to basket shooting.

[illegible] A and seven in Class B. In [illegible] A, after [illegible] the regents [illegible] 1942, are Xenia Central, defending champion with a 13-3 [illegible] Toledo Central Catholic, last year's runner-up Akron Kenmore, Greenfield McClain (14 [illegible], Celina, Warren, Lakewood, Canton Lehman and Steubenville.

Class B clubs with a chance to repeat include Lorain Clearview (18 wins), Wyoming, Yorkville, Hayden Township of Wood County (19 wins), Tipp City and Latham Western Rural.

North Canton Loses

North Canton, 1939 Class B [illegible] champion, [illegible] paced the Class A clubs through the season with 19 victories, [illegible] 33-31 before Lorain [illegible] weakened the team, and Akron East ended Eaton's 17-game streak in Class B, 44-35.

Marion Perry, 1941 champion, [illegible] a bow in Class A, Deshance has 19 and Greenfield 14, but all the others have been defeated. Among the Class B leaders, undefeated, are Plain City 26, Pleasant Township 18 and Celina 20, all in the Central district, Lorain Clearview and Champion, 18 each, Middlepoint 21, and Worcester Township, 19.

Surprises were a dime a dozen in last week's sectionals, proving that anything can happen when season's records are tossed aside and the chips go down in the tournament. Ironton, beaten only twice during the year, was eliminated by an in-and-out Jackson club, 35-33; Portsmouth, which lost only three during the campaign, is among the Southeast district's four survivors; and Dayton Stivers, winner of one of 13 games, [illegible] both Hamilton and Dayton Stivers [illegible] Wright, who between them had copped 19 and lost 13.

Class A survivors of district play will split into squads of four to play regional meets March 20 at Zanesville, Kent, Bowling Green and Dayton, while the Class B squads will wage regionals at Athens, Kent, Bowling Green and Springfield.

Each regional will send one survivor to Columbus March 27 for the state championship frays.

O. S. U. Is Running a District Tournament —And That's All.

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

Just one of the little things which for years played a big part in sidetracking the cream of Ohio's scholastic football stars away from Ohio State university before the advent of Paul Brown is creeping out in the Central district Class A tournament now in progress in State's gymnasium—poor organization and lack of leadership.

A far cry from the previous district playoffs which were held at Delaware, the tournament which swings into the second round of play tonight has been sheared of virtually all the trimmings and some might important essentials.

Without programs with which spectators can follow the play, tournament officials might well have locked the doors to team followers. Except for their own teams, fans are simply in the dark as to who is who once the action gets underway.

A clock—standard equipment of nine out of ten gym floors—was minus at the O. S. U. floor last Saturday.

Buck officials in charge of the tournament are neglecting spectators almost entirely. One of the two huge bleachers set up to handle the usual throng was erected about 50 feet from the playing court and could easily have been placed in about the same position as the north set of bleachers.

Of course this is a wartime tournament and plenty of inconveniences may be expected. But some organizations are blaming too many things on the war. For instance, the tournament playing floor could be cleaned, new nets could be placed on the hoops, an over and back line could easily be painted at mid-court and mats could be hung to the walls at the ends of the floor to protect players from possible serious injury. But O. S. U. adds, "There's a war on."

• • •

N. C. O. pencil pushers met at Galion last night for the purpose of selecting the long awaited all-N. C. O. basketball team. If the writers follow their usual policy, they'll select two teams, a first and second string, then a number of players to an honorable mention list.

This business of placing a limited number of youths on pedestals above fellow players is a serious task, one which cannot be accomplished successfully without close contact with the players themselves. While it has not been a well known fact, coaches and players of league teams play a very important part in the writers' final choices. For instance during the season each scribe attempts to worm out of the players from his own town the names of players from other league cities who, in the opinion of the players themselves, were toughest.

It must be remembered, of caurse, that Johnny Jones of Paducah may have looked terrible against the locals, but against the other league members he was a real star, and therefore rates a place on the select list.

ARMSTRONG FLOORS TIP LARKIN IN 2ND

Flashes Old Form in San Francisco Fight.

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8—Game little Henry Armstrong [illegible] over another tough hurdle on a determined campaign to regain his manifold ring glories, and the way he pummeled off Tippy Larkin in less than two rounds last night brought to mind his service of [illegible] out days of old.

Armstrong set the stage for his April 2 bout with the sensational Beau Jack in New York by knocking out Larkin in one minute and nine seconds of the second round in their scheduled 10-round scrap before some 8,000 fans in the [illegible] arena.

Larkin took the first round by a shade.

But in the second he dropped his guard for an instant, and Armstrong flashed in a right that spun the New Jersey boy around. A swift left hooked him and he sprawled on the canvas for the full count.

Armstrong weighed 139 pounds to Larkin's 140½.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, March 9 — Maybe you didn't notice a little item in the papers the other day saying that Peter Manning had died at Hanover, Pa. . . . He was 27 a ripe old age for a trotting horse. . . . Perhaps you don't even remember Peter Manning, but two decades ago he held the same place in the hearts of harness-racing fans that Greyhound holds today—a champion of champions, a holder of records—a big, well-proportioned horse with a shining light bay coat. He was a symbol of the attraction that harness racing holds for men, even city folks who couldn't hitch up a horse on a bet.

It was back in 1918 that William M. Wright of Chicago gave a two-year-old gelding his first trial over a mile track in Milwaukee. . . . Peter Manning was timed in 2:10 then and when he went to Lexington, Ky., the next spring he was regarded as a favorite for the Kentucky Futurity. . . . Peter didn't race at Lexington, but Tommy Murphy, the famous reinsman, sent him through a tie trial in 2:06¼ and as a result Irving Gleason of Williamsport, Pa., bought the horse and put him under Murphy's care. . . . From then until he retired, Peter Manning was virtually unbeatable. . . . In 1922 Peter lowered the world mile record from 1:58, made by Uhland, to 1:56¾, a record that stood until the Greyhound reached 1:56 in 1937. . . . In 1925 Peter Manning went after the Harvester's two-mile record of 4.15¼ that had stood for 15 years and, trotting only against time, lowered it to 4.10¼. . . . That mark also fell to Greyhound years later.

Peter manning is dead, and horse lovers will regret his passing. . . . But, after all, he must have had a pretty good life for a horse.

RINGLING CIRCUS GOES OLD FASHIONED THIS YEAR

Emphasis Will Be on Thrilling Features of Past.

By The Associated Press

SARASOTA, Fla., March 9—The Ringling circus has gone old fashioned, and the modernistic trappings of recent years have been toned down or abandoned altogether for this year's tour in favor of the old-time features which held grandpa spellbound.

"Modernistic spectacles and features were all right for a change, but I believe circus fans now want a change in the other direction, and that's what we are going to provide this season," said Robert Ringling, managing director and senior vice president.

One of the first changes made was a modified revival of the street parade, eliminated years ago because it slowed up schedules. This time, however, instead of being a street ballyhoo stunt, it will be the opening spectacle under canvas.

Gone too will be the modernized big top with its subdued colors and "intimate" design intended to bring performers in closer contact with audiences. In its place will be one of the original Ringling-type six-pole tents providing space for three rings, two stages and a hippodrome track.

Service Provision

Pay increases or decreases in the number of all regular employes will be determined on the length of continuous service with the city and competence of the employes. Employes who have been working continuously for more than a year will be entitled to a one-week vacation at the regular rate of pay.

According to the ordinance, all employes will be entitled to not more than 10 days sick leave with pay in any one year, provided a doctor's certificate attesting to the illness is presented.

However, in passing the ordinance, it was decided that the chairman of the safety and franchise committee of council should meet with a committee of employes to amend the section dealing with sick leave. Council as a whole was in accord with an expression of Councilman William G. Slack that the section was unfair to older employes, since it would grant the same period of sick leave to a man employed a month as it would to men who have been in the city's service over a long period of years.

If an agreement is reached between the council committee and the workers' committee, staggering the sick leave to conform with the employment period, the section will be amended at a meeting in two weeks.

The ordinance also provides that in case of grievances the employes should first seek an adjustment with the safety-service director and if no satisfactory agreement can be made, then with the mayor. If no satisfactory agreement can be made with the mayor the matter will be submitted to council and the decision of council will be final.

Jones Resignation Deferred

Resignation of J. D. Jones, Fifth Ward councilman, which was expected last night, will be submitted the last of this week or early next week.

Until his certification as a county commissioner succeeding the late U. F. Zachman, is completed, he will remain an active councilman.

Mayor Snare, speaking in the caucus session, expressed his regret at losing Mr. Jones as a member of council and said that "those who had the appointment to make did a mighty fine job and appointed a very capable man."

Robert H. Stief, president of council, suggested that some consideration be given to removing the "no turn" signs at Main and Center streets on Saturday nights, since the closing of stores at 6 has relieved heavy traffic at the intersection.

Following a report of repair work directed by Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell, reports were made of repairs which should be made to South Prospect street between Center and Church street, to an alley running south from Duluth avenue between Cherry street and Girard avenue, to an alley back of the P. F. Markert home on Hane avenue, and to an alley west of the Millard Hunt Co. plant on North Prospect street.

Police Report

The police report for February showed that the department made 199 arrests, issued 713 traffic tickets, answered 611 calls, handled 632 complaints, served 121 meals at the city prison, received reports of two automobiles and 13 bicycles stolen, recovered three automobiles valued at $1,475, recovered 11 bicycles valued at $230 and recovered other property valued at $1,247.05.

A report of local relief in February showed that 70 cases involving 163 persons were taken care of and that the cash balance on hand Feb. 28 was $16.28. The water hardness analysis for the period ending March 5 showed a high of 11.7 grains and a low of 10.

Miss Houck Thanked

On motion of Councilman Slack the council unanimously adopted a resolution giving a rising vote of thanks to Miss Hallie Houck of The Star staff for her services in reporting of council sessions. In the resolution she was termed an "ex officio" member of council. Miss Houck has enlisted in the U. S. Marine Corps Women's Reserve and is awaiting a call to training.

KENTON, O., March 9—"Artie Ruth" and "Jakie" are doing very nicely on their diet of bread and milk, cereal, scraps from the table, carrots and fresh vegetables, thank you!

The two are seven-weeks-old porkers, overflow from a large litter that arrived during extreme cold, and have received special care from Miss Lulu Green, farmerette of near Hasseyville.

Now weighing more than 40 pounds each, Artie Ruth and Jakie sit up, play dead and do a variety of other parlor tricks for Miss Green. They are more intelligent than any of the other pigs she has trained, said their owner, who credits their ability on the increased use of carrots and other vitamin-bearing vegetables in their diet.

"About the only things they won't eat are mashed potatoes and ear corn," Miss Green said.

PRESIDENT PROPOSES PUERTO RICAN VOTE

Would Give Island Right To Elect Governor.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 9 — President Roosevelt asked congress today to consider "as soon as possible" legislation to permit the people of Puerto Rico to elect their own governor.

The governor of Puerto Rico now is appointed by the chief executive, subject to senate confirmation.

The incumbent is Rexford G. Tugwell, whose administration has been attacked by a coalition of insular political parties. They accused him of attempting to set up a communistic state. Tugwell has been vigorously defended by Interior Secretary Ickes and is supported in the islands by the Popular Democratic party which has had control of the insular legation.

Mr. Roosevelt said the proposal that Puerto Ricans be allowed to choose their own governor originated with Tugwell and was relayed by Ickes. "He said it long had been the policy of the United States government "progressively to reinforce the machinery of self government in its territories and island possessions."

Soviet reminders that Bessarabia, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania are considered integral parts of the Soviet Union. And it was said to be no secret that Premier Joseph Stalin and his associates are convinced that Russia was double-crossed in the first World war in which she lost those areas, as well as Finland, and parts of white Russia and the Ukraine.

A combination foreign-home front phase of the capital scene saw a drive to write international law into the lend-lease act gaining momentum in the house—but still apparently doomed for defeat. Heading the movement were Representatives Fish (R-NY) and Vorys (R-Ohio), the latter seeking to hang a clause of the Atlantic charter on the legislation, forbidding use of lend-lease aid to suppress the right of people to choose their own form of government.

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill, congressional foes of military expansion appeared convinced of administration determination to boost size of the armed forces to 10,800,000 by the year's end and saw increased prospects of drafting civilian manpower to produce war supplies.

Farm Labor Bill

While the senate military committee heard more testimony—expected to urge enactment—on the Austin-Wadsworth bill to draft men and women for farm and factory war work, the senate itself was confronted with another revision of a farm labor deferment bill excluding agriculture workers from the services only if they produce crops essential to war needs.

In the house, the unsinkable supporters of the Ruml pay-as-you-go income tax plan bobbed back up to continue their battle to skip a year in levy liabilities after being slapped down for the second time by the ways and means committee. After voting down Beardsley Ruml's proposal to erase all of last year's income tax obligations, 16 to 9, committee members feverishly searched for a compromise that would, however, cancel a substantial part of the 1942 taxes. The nine Republicans who favored the Ruml plan prepared to carry the fight to the house floor.

"HIT KITS" TO HELP KEEP ARMY SINGING

Popular Songs to be Supplied Each Month.

COLUMBUS, O., March 8—Soldiers everywhere are going to do a lot more singing now that the Army, filling a growing demand, is furnishing "hit kits" containing the words and music of popular songs.

Major J. L. Milbourn, chief of the special services branch of the Fifth Service command, has announced that the first allotment of the new "hit kits" are being distributed to Army men within the command.

The song kits, to be issued monthly by the special services division of the Services of Supply, are for distribution to Army personnel in the United States and overseas. A committee of 21 radio stars and popular music experts, headed by Fred Waring as chairman, will select the six songs making up the "hit kit" each month.

Appropriately enough, the first song in the March kit is "This is the Army, Mister Jones." The other songs in the collection include "There Are Such Things"; "Move It Over"; "I Had the Craziest Dream"; "I've Got Sixpence," and "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." New arrangements of old favorites will appear in the kits from time to time.

Distribution of the kits is being worked out so that groups of four or five men belonging to the same unit will have the use of a pocket-size folder bearing the song lyrics. The music for piano and voice is prepared in a standard sheet music size folder.

KENTON MAN DIES ON OVERSEAS DUTY

Cpl. Walter E. Goodman, 34, Stricken in Pacific.

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., March 9 — The first Kenton man to die in overseas service is Corporal Walter E. Goodman, 34, native of this city who died "somewhere in the South Pacific" on February 14 as the result of tropical fever and pneumonia, it was learned here officially yesterday.

Lt. Col. Herbert W. Radcliffe, former commanding officer of Kenton Company E, wrote home that several blood transfusions failed to pull the soldier through the crisis and that he died after a long illness.

Corporal Goodwin left Kenton with Company E when that Ohio national guard unit entered federal service in October, 1940. He was home for a time when those soldiers over 28 years of age were released, and then was married to Elizabeth Tyler of Anderson, Ind.

Upon being recalled to service he was sent to Indiantown Gap, Pa., to rejoin Company E and sailed overseas with the 37th Ohio. One other member of the unit, Sgt. Bernard Rumer of Ridgeway, died overseas of a cerebral hemorrhage last fall.

Surviving Goodman are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Thornton Goodman of Kenton; his wife, who lives in Anderson, Ind., one brother, Pvt. Wilbert T. Goodman, now on maneuvers in Tennessee, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Scott of Foraker, west of Kenton.

MANY STOCKS DROP 3 POINTS

Continued Profit Cashing Extends Decline in Wall Street Trading.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 9—Further profit cashing today extended the decline in the stock market.

Recessions of fraction to 3 points were widespread near the fourth hour. There were isolated losses of 7 or so.

Many potential buyers stood aside on the belief the technical correction of the 10-months' recovery, which got under way Monday, might have considable distance to go.

Principal casualties included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, American Can, Anaconda, and U. S. Rubber.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

I PAUSED before answering Katharine's question, for I realized that the same query lurked in my "sub-conscious."

Mary, in that emotional scene with her husband of which I had been an unwilling witness, had stopped to settle the question of her wifely love and loyalty to him compared to her career, and if Noel continued to "look over her apple cart," as he had just done in making a scene because Mary was wearing an unbecoming gown for the forthcoming supper party in Georges' honor, I could not foretell Mary's reaction.

Noel's masculine vanity was wounded because his wife in her dress would not outshine everyone else at the party, and since Georges was a wonderful pal to her husband and taken care of her, for I knew the high-spirited Mary would have to control her impulses rigidly lest she show Noel what charm she could exert even in the unbecoming gown she had donned in line with my suggestion that she "turn off her charm" at the party for Georges, and build up Olina as the center of attraction. For we both knew Olina was "wearing her heart out" for Georges, playmate of her childhood and once her betrothed husband.

Possible Shoals Ahead

I told myself dismally that Mary was as headstrong as a colt and had her full share of feminine vanity and romantic nonsense, and I could see, like Katharine, that there were possible shoals ahead in the marital sea of the young Noel Veritzens.

"If you mean," I answered slowly at last, "that Mary is in danger of transferring her true love from Noel to Georges, the answer is no."

"I agree with you," Katharine said. "Her heart is, essentially, 'true to Poll.' But both Georges and Mary are superlatives in good looks and charm, and have more than a spice of the devil in their make-ups. The combination is apt to develop emotional dynamite, and I imagine an explosion of that character is what you want 'anything else but'."

"Right you are," I told her emphatically, and added dismally, "but I don't see what else I can [illegible]
